FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Ironclad Security for Solaris 10 - PitBull from Argus Systems

Savoy, IL, June 5, 2007—Argus Systems Group announced today the release of PitBull Foundation for Solaris 10. This product converts Solaris 10 into a trusted operating system designed to meet LSPP criteria at EAL 4+. It is built on the classic, labeled security model similar to Trusted Solaris. This means that IT security managers now have the option of retaining the architecture developed previously for labeled security.

PitBull Foundation for Solaris 10 is available now and incorporates features from previous versions of Foundation and also includes additional enhancements. PitBull Foundation Suite is scheduled to follow shortly.

“Going beyond perimeter security to the heart of the system PitBull provides security that perimeter solutions do not. The combination of PitBull Foundation and Foundation Suite provides our customers with a powerful security product that can protect their valuable assets,” said Andrew Jones, Argus CEO. “By using PitBull, companies that maintain sensitive data such as personal or banking information can securely store this data without fear of compromise. We now have ten years of experience with live financial data to back this claim. Organizations such as government agencies, health care providers, and infrastructure operations are also protecting publicly-accessible systems by using these products.”

PitBull Foundation is a software product that converts a standard operating system to a trusted operating system. PitBull Foundation Suite is a set of utilities to simplify installation as well as enhance operational efficiency. PitBull Foundation and PitBull Foundation Suite are available for Solaris 8 and Solaris 10, as well as AIX 5.3. PitBull Foundation for AIX has been certified under Common Criteria LSPP at EAL 4+.
